

Ecology

To understand human beings as a part of nature, to teach them the unity and value of all living things, the impossibility of human life without protection of the biosphere, the laws of human life related to the natural environment, Azerbaijan's natural ecological conditions, natural resources and their distribution, prepares a specialist who is able to see the main environmental problems in different areas and has the potential to know how to solve them.

Personnel with this specialty can work in the following areas:

- In government organizations
- In the ministries
- In international and local projects
- In international centers
- In non-governmental organizations
- In project companies
- In the marine and fishing industries
- In Scientific Research Laboratories